Still Picketing Local Factories

Attempt to Unionize Local Shops Proceeds Peacefully—Trustees of Mechanics' Hall Ban Organizer Barufkin From Holding Meetings There.

The latest development in the effort of Organizer H. Barufkin and his squad of pickets representing the Striking Garment Workers Union in New York city to unionize the two local garment factories is the placing of a ban on the use of Mechanics' Hall on Henry street for the purpose of holding meetings. Thursday evening police headquarters was notified by Judson Van Gaasbeck, a member of the board of trustees of the Jr. O. U. A. M., that commencing today and thereafter the use of the hall was banned to the garment workers

Trustees Write Letter.

Judson Van Gaasbeck and Rufus Kelder, trustees of the Jr. O. U. A. M., have written the following letter to The Freeman:

"In your issue of September 2, it was stated that Mr. Barufkin, representative of the striking garment workers in New York city, had opened headquarters in Mechanics' Hall where meetings were being held This statement made by Mr. Barufkin is absolutely false, as no portion of Mechanics' Hall has been let to this party or any of his representatives"

It will be seen by this letter that the trustees deny that Mr. Barufkin has rented the use of the hall for headquarters, but do not deny that the hall was used for the purpose of holding meetings there on Thursday

Still Busy Picketing.

This morning shortly after 7 o clock Organizer Barufkin and his staff of professional picketers started the work of picketing the factory of Max Hazen at No. 40 Broadway early, and the picketing continued in force until shortly after 9 o'clock when the picketers retired from the field and proceeded to march on the factory at the corner of Fair and Franklin streets, in the building formerly used by St. Joseph's School before the present fine school building was erected.

All Quiet on Broadway.

It was stated that of the forty girls employed at the Hazen plant but half a dozen appeared for work this morning. The girls who reside in Glasco did not come to Kingston on the bus as usual this morning.

Police on Duty.

To prevent trouble or disorder the police department has assigned police to duty at the Hazen plant and also to the plant uptown and they were on duty today.

GERMAN SWIMMER SAYS HE WILL TURN PROFESSIONAL

He has been flooded with offers from America and England for exhibition swims and vaudeville tours. The offers totals $100,000 but Vierkoetter says he wants only enough money to finance a modern bakery in Cologne.

"While I have not accepted any specific offer," the swimmer said, "I am sailing for New York in October after giving my father and mother a vacation.

"I do not want to have to accept charity again, as I did at Calais. English friends even gave me the train fare home."

An "Economy Floor".

Mr. Goldberg, of the Paris Cloak and Suit Company, Wall and North Front streets, has added an "economy floor" in addition to his regular line of women's wearing apparel. The second floor of the building has been altered and a complete millinery department has been installed in connection with a ladies' dress department where a full line of moderate price dresses are shown. In the "economy" department, which will carry a full assortment of dresses, but one price will prevail.

Young Wins Cal. In Governor Race

Johnson's Man Wins Gubernatorial Nomination But His Senatorial Candidate is Badly Beaten.

San Francisco, Sept. 3 (AP).—Virtually complete returns early today indicated the nomination of C. C. Young, one of five Republicans who opposed Governor Friend W. Richardson in his race for renomination at Tuesday's primary. With only 148 precincts missing out of 6271 in the state Lieutenant-Governor Young was 12,292 votes ahead of the Governor. Young had the indorsement of Senator Hiram Johnson.

Justus S. Wardell of San Francisco appeared to have won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. With returns missing from 148 precincts he had 53,237 votes against 51,404 polled by Carl Alexander Johnson, anti-Tammany candidate indorsed by William Gibbs McAdoo.

United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, a Coolidge Republican, maintained a lead of more than 96,000 votes over his nearest opponent, Robert M. Clarke, an anti-World Court candidate, supported by Senator Johnson.

John B. Elliott, whom McAdoo indorsed for the Democratic senatorial nomination, was well ahead of Isidore Dockweiler, the man he accused of trafficking with Tammany in an alleged nation-wide plot to swing the 1928 Democratic presidential nomination to Governor Al Smith of New York.

Governor Smith Back In Albany

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP).—Governor Smith today was back at the executive mansion from his annual visit to the Syracuse state fair. The governor moved stiffly about the mansion, favoring a slightly sore back and the pull of stitches and adhesive tape. A recent operation in which a mole between the shoulder blades was removed and the accidental pulling of the stitches closing the incision were responsible for the executive's condition. The rather slow and painful walk which the dressings and the natural soreness of the wound demanded gave rise to reports during his Syracuse visit that he was suffering from a more than mild illness. He announced upon his arrival last night that he would rest over the week end and resumed work Monday.

Kreole Company Now Operating

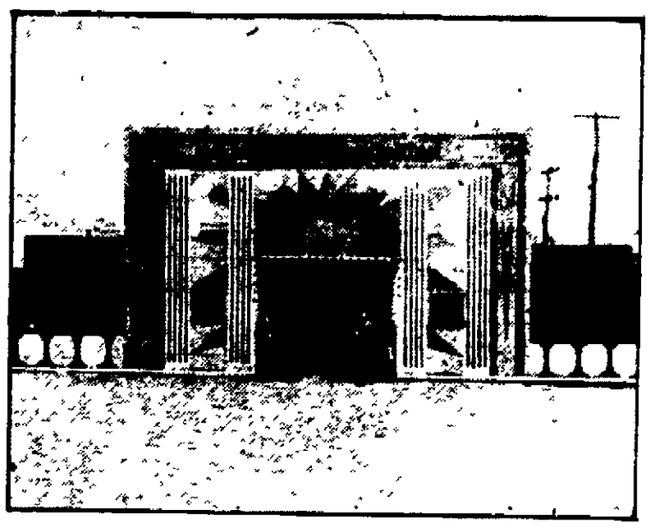

The Federal Kreole Manufacturing Company, which recently leased the three story brick building on lower Hasbrouck avenue, formerly occupied by the Bostonian Waist Company, is now in operation and by September 15 expects to be running full force. At the present time seven are employed at the plant and when it is operating full force that number will be increased by about fifteen or eighteen more. The company became established in business in New York city in 1914, and this year decided to remove the plant to this city. The company manufactures all kinds of dyes, shoe polishes and automobile varnishes. At the present time enough orders are on hand to keep the factory running for several months.

Child Health Contest At Kingston Exposition

Junior League of Kingston Will Award Valuable Prizes to Two Most Nearly Perfect Children—Child Health Day Program Under Auspices of Board of Health—Pet Show Open to All Ulster County Residents.

On another page of The Freeman will be found an advertisement of the Kingston Exposition to which is attached a coupon for entry into the Child Health Contest, which will be one of the most interesting features of the Exposition.

This event is conducted by the Junior League of Kingston and two handsome and valuable prizes will be awarded to the two most nearly perfect children under four years of age in the city.

Arrangements have been made by the Junior League for Doctors Daniel Connelly, E. E. Norwood and Mary Gage Day to conduct the preliminary examination of the babies at the City Hall on September 14 This will be called the elimination examination and the children who do not come up to certain health and development standards will be eliminated from the contest at that time.

The final judging will be on September 17 at the booth of the Junior League in the Exposition.

The children will be judged on general health, height, weight, weight at birth, chest, abdomen, extremities and skin, and general appearance.

Parents are urged to enter their children in this contest as very often when they are examined by competent physicians tendencies are discovered which, if taken in time may prevent serious consequences later. These tendencies exist in even the healthiest appearing children but are readily discovered by the doctors.

The judges at the final examination which will be held on the 17th will be Doctors H L. Van Norstrand, Joseph Jacobson and E. H. Loughran.

Child Health Day.

Another event which will prove of special interest to Kingston mothers will be Child Health Day, Wednesday, September 15, at which time the afternoon program will be under the auspices of the Kingston Board of Health. A demonstration of child care and health will be made and there will be talks on this vital subject which will prove most valuable to parents It is possible there will also be a demonstration of the use of serum in the prevention of diphtheria.

Parents who wish to enter their children in the Child Health contest can secure entrance blanks at the Kingston Chamber of Commerce or can use the coupon attached to the advertisement appearing in this issue of The Freeman, filling it in and mailing it to the Chamber of Commerce.

Begin Work on Building.

Work on the building of the exposition is to begin today with the assembling of materials at the Fair Grounds. This is a real task as the tents will be 600 feet long and 1,200 feet of booth space must be erected wired and floored.

Festoons of electric lights will be stretched from each tent pole to the booths and each booth will be brilliantly lighted with three 100 watt lights. The stage, front and model electric home will literally blaze with light for powerful floodlights will be erected on poles around them.

A picture of the ornamental front of the exposition which is being built for the show is reproduced herewith This will be a feature not used in previous Kingston Expositions.

The Pet Show.

A coupon for entry into the Exposition pet show is printed in this issue of The Freeman. This contest, in which prizes will be awarded for the prettiest, homeliest, smallest and most unusual pets is open to all Ulster county residents. The Child Health Contest, however, is open only to children under four years of age, residing in Kingston.

Home of Chicago Boss Bombed

Chicago, Sept. 3 (AP).—The west side home of Morris Eller, Cook county Republican chieftain, was wrecked early today by a bomb.

Members of the family were hurled from their beds by the blast, which demolished the interior of the building and broke windows for blocks around, but were uninjured. The bomb was set off in a side doorway of the apartment house. Persons in an upper apartment occupied by the family of Mr. Eller's son-in-law, and in the adjacent home of Joseph Ginsberg, also were thrown from their bed.

Police said the charge was one of the most powerful ever set here. Authorities turned to the theory that political enmity was responsible.

Eller, a leader in the Crowe-Barrett faction of the Republican forces in Chicago, is a trustee of the Chicago Sanitary District and has long been active in ward activities on the west side. He was a witness before the Senate committee in its recent investigation of the Illinois primaries.

Army Blimp TC-5 Weathers Storms

St. Louis, Sept. 3 (AP).—The army blimp TC-5 landed at Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., near here, shortly after six o'clock this morning, after riding around two thunder and electrical storms during the night.

Lieutenant W. A. Gray and his crew considered the night's trip from Dayton, Ohio, uneventful, they said, with the exception that it was "interesting flying around the storms." The storms and the lightning did not injure the blimp.

The ship, which left Dayton shortly before four p. m., central standard time yesterday, carried 30 hours of gas. A total mileage of about 350 was recorded, with an average speed of about 35 miles.

Although the ship had not been sighted since about 8:30 last night when it passed over Terre Haute, Lieutenant Gray reported that the blimp was navigated at a height of about 1,000 or 1,500 feet over most of the route.

Bubonic Plague Hits The Azores

Two Have Succumbed to Disease Since Tuesday's Quake—Governor Says Sanitary Conditions Are Satisfactory.

Horta, Azores, Sept 3 (AP)—There have been four cases of bubonic plague and two deaths from the disease since last Tuesday's disastrous earthquake, in which it is estimated 1,500 houses were destroyed and at last 25 persons were killed and several hundred injured.

The governor of the islands, who also is a physician, told The Associated Press today that the general sanitary situation was satisfactory and that the two remaining bubonic victims had been isolated

The quake caught the American consul, Reginald S Castleman, at his morning shave He rushed into the back garden with his wife and servant from where he witnessed his own and adjoining houses swaying and other houses falling amid clouds of dust. Proceeding to the consulate he found that the stairways had fallen and that the ceilings of two rooms and one wall had collapsed As occupation of the offices would have been dangerous in view of the repeated tremors the consul established the building and established his offices on the veranda of his residence where business was carried on as usual.

LIVE BUSINESS MEN ADVERTISE IN THE FREEMAN

TOTEM IS GIVEN TO MACAW CLAN

Bonita Indians Receive Highly Prized Gift From Explorer.

Washington.—Fulfilling a promise of a year's standing, Dr. Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic society expeditions to Pueblo Bonito, N. M., recently presented to members of the Zuni tribe a gift for which they would gladly have paid in turquoise. It was a live, brilliant Mexican macaw, a bird full of meaning to certain of the Indians; yet only a few members of the tribe had ever before seen one of these brightly feathered parrots.

"Each of the dozen or more clans (individuals related through the maternal line) at Zuni has its own clan totem: the bear, badger, coyote, eagle, snake, corn and mustard," Doctor Judd writes in a report to the National Geographic society. "Of all these clans none has a larger or more vigorous membership than the Macaw people. The Macaw clan has furnished a majority of the leading men at Zuni for several generations past. But these leaders knew the macaw, their clan totem, only through verbal description, handed down from one generation to another. Two years ago a small delegation went to San Domingo, a Tewa pueblo near Albuquerque, there to trade turquoise ornaments for macaw feathers. There are two captive macaws at San Domingo, obtained through exchange with Mexicans.

Recognize Pictures of Totem.

"During past years at Pueblo Bonito several of my Zuni excavation crew have been members of the Macaw clan. Pictures in our camp library verified descriptions of the moolo, to give the Zuni name of the macaw. These men were highly pleased last fall when I told them I should try to obtain for them a live bird, as a gift to the entire Macaw clan.

"But this spring when I arrived at Zuni I found that carefully laid plans were intended to divert my purpose and bring something of an individual reward. Two of the boys had made it known that the bird was to be a present to each, individually, and I suppose each of the pair had already taken orders for moolo feathers, indispensable articles of adornment in certain ceremonies and in the preparation of prayer plumes. But I insisted the macaw was a gift to the entire clan and not a personal remembrance to a single friend. It was my expressed opinion that the Sun Priest, as highest official of the clan, should receive the bird and act as its custodian. And right there I discovered some surprising information about the macaw and its habits.

Zuni Nature Fakers.

"Taking advantage of my limited Zuni vocabulary and still hoping to obtain the bird for himself, one of the two boys, in my presence, told the Sun Priest that in their native habitat the macaws gather in flocks of from 200 to 500 and, as they see a man passing through the forest, swoop down to attack him. The moolo was credited with being especially fond of human flesh and extremely dangerous in captivity. Previously, the Sun Priest had learned from the second hopeful lad that the macaw was apt to die if he did not get the kind of food to which he had grown accustomed. But after an hour's discussion the fears of the priest were eliminated and he consented to care for the macaw in behalf of his people. Word came to camp last week-end that the Sun Priest and the macaw had established friendly relations and that both were quite content.

"No one knows how long the Moolo people have been represented in Zuni. Tradition says they came up out of the fourth world with the other clans in that dim, distant past when all the races of mankind, the birds, animals and trees spoke a common language. Macaw clans are to be found in some of the other Pueblo villages of New Mexico and Arizona. But in no instance, so far as I am aware, can one learn definitely how long these clans have possessed the macaw as a totem or how they first became acquainted with the bird.

Ancient Bonitans Kept Captive Birds.

"During the course of the National Geographic society's explorations in Pueblo Bonito, we have found over thirty skeletons of the great macaw. And Pueblo Bonito, from archeological evidence, was abandoned approximately 1,000 years ago. It appears then that the inhabitants of this great prehistoric village must have obtained live macaws through barter with the tribes of central Mexico. The birds were kept here in captivity for we have found the perches on which they had been tethered and we have found the corn, pinon nuts and squash seeds on which they were fed. The Macaw clan doubtless wielded a considerable influence at Pueblo Bonito.

"One may imagine sandaled Mexican Indians carrying on their backs cages containing five macaws, captured in tropical forests, trudging across the hot sands of the Southwest in ancient times, bound for the famous, terraced village of the Bonitans. Mules, horses and other beasts of burden were unknown in the Americas before the arrival of the Spaniards early in the Sixteenth century. Yet Fray Marco de Niza, as he journeyed northward out of Mexico in 1539 to the discovery of the 'Seven Cities of Cibola,' notes in his journal that he passed Mexican Indians returning with turquoise they had obtained in exchange for parrot feathers."

Charming and Chic Is This Dainty Negligee

This winsome negligee for the mature woman is of rose orchid with heavy gold lace trimmed with a fleur de lis and rose design.

Cape and Cape Back Are Shown on Latest Models

Cape and cape back are shown in some of the latest models of crepe and chiffon. The material is usually cut circular or with a bias edge to give a dainty fluttering effect. One model worn at a Southampton garden tea was made of flesh-colored crepe Elizabeth, the skirt with a flare and a narrow bias cape hanging to the bottom of the dress, which was untrimmed but belted with a girdle. The same shade of ribbon is used on the braid horsehair hat and covers a small carriage parasol.

The popularity of black and pink, which was introduced last season, has greatly increased and is used this season in some of the most charming gowns of the garden party type. One model from a prominent French house is made of chantilly lace flounces and black chiffon over pink crepe. The lace is finely plaited and made in two ruffles placed at a small space apart, and is used in a narrower width at the neck and on the elbow sleeves. A black hair braid hat has a band and a bow of two-inch black velvet ribbon about the crown and a large pink rose sewn flat under the brim at one side. A parasol of pink crepe is covered with the black chiffon, shirred with a frill of finely plaited chantilly on the edge.

Ostrich May Replace Beads and Embroidery

From behind the locked door of the designing rooms of Parisian arbiters of fashion there come hints of new trimmings, always in ostrich feathers. The biggest houses are said to be working on gowns featuring the feather in so novel a way as to make one marvel at modern ingenuity. The ostrich feather is replacing both beads and embroidery; entire materials are being made of it, which are even softer to the eye and touch than velvet. Linings for evening coats need be no longer of fur, since the ostrich, cleverly clipped, will offer an even warmer covering, being at the same time much lighter and certainly daintier.

As a startling reaction to the masculine modes of some women, she who wishes can be utterly feminine this coming winter besides being novel and thoroughly smart. Certainly there will be an even greater study and variety of shades and colors. The uncouth ostrich has come into his own once more.

An Extra-Linked Bar Has Spring Adjustment

In place of the long straight barpin, ordinarily used for corsages of every sort, there is a real innovation in an extra-linked bar with a spring adjustment attached. When the bouquet or boutonniere is to be worn it is simply slipped through this section, and thus held firmly in place. In no way does this interfere with the wearing of the pin in an ordinary manner. These pins come in three lengths and choice may be made for the size and use required. All the new colors in light shades, as well as black, are being shown.

Imitation garnets in festoon and pendant designs and in graduated sizes are being shown for short and medium length necklaces. With them are bracelets and earrings to match. A certain vogue is predicted for this type of jewelry because of an increasing demand for antiques and for modern work in the antique manner.

Frilled Collars Worn

Neck pieces seen in the smart shops resemble nothing so much as the ruffled collar worn by the clown dog in the circus. They are usually fashioned of frills of ostrich plumes and ribbon or made from the brightest of taffeta. No long ends stream from them as they are fastened with enormous bows ruffled under one ear by a big cluster of artificial flowers.

Latest Nightgowns More Conservative in Line

Nightgowns in the present mode are presented in great variety, having a direct appeal for their style, beauty and comfort. Some of the novelties brought over by importers are more conservative in line than the extremely decollete filmy trifles that have been worn for many seasons. The new models are made with a belted waistline, with ribbon sash and bow ends, the upper part of the bodice resembling a negligee. Crepe de chine is used even more than the more sheer materials, with a simpler scheme of trimming. An attractive gown of American design will have an immediate appeal. The material is crepe de chine in a delicate shade of peach, with a yoke square at the top and ending in a V formed of lace. A double band of peach-colored georgette is used to finish the deep-cut armhole and the bottom of the gown.

A crepe gown designed on this side is even more formal, having a deep V outlined with an applique band cut in points of georgette in a contrasting shade. This model also has an edge of georgette in a narrow fold, a dainty detail that is shown in many of the best models of both French and American design.

More Fullness Feature of Newest Paris Gowns

All of the couturiers at Paris are building their gowns with more fullness than they have heretofore shown. Among those whose designs are most pronounced in style are Phillipe et Gaston, Martial et Armand, Nicole Groult, Patou and Lanvin. Lelong cuts some of his handsomest afternoon gowns on princess lines with a definite flare, ornamenting plain surfaces with fine embroidery and bands of material in sharply contrasting material. In many of the models the waistline is almost at the normal point, in some it is slightly lifted in front.

Dress Is Trimmed With Eight-Inch-Wide Sash

The evening dress most frequently seen consists of a straight sheath or satin foureau trimmed only with an eight-inch-wide sash of a contrasting color placed on the hips. This sash is sewn to the dress at the top and in loose at the bottom, finished off at the back in a loose flat butterfly bow, which has no hanging ends. The favorite color schemes for these dresses are: Blue on pink, canary on claret-wine, and a pale blue on a deeper one.

Conferees Discuss Fifth Reservation

Belgian Representative Discusses Judicial Difficulties—Latin American Pleads for Acceptance of Reservations.

Geneva, Sept. 3 (AP)—Representatives of thirty-eight countries holding membership in the World Court resumed discussion today of the fifth and last of the reservations attached to America's adherence to the court.

In opening the session, President Von Eysinga said the first reading of the reservations should be completed during the day. He added the belief that a committee should be appointed to carry on the work during the sitting of the League of Nations assembly.

M. Rolin, Belgian jurist, made a brilliant exposition of the judicial difficulties confronting acceptance of the fifth reservation, requiring American consent to action by the league council in seeking advisory opinions from the court on questions "in which the United States has or claims an interest." He declared, nevertheless, that he was convinced the conferees were nearer a complete understanding with the United States on this thorny point.

Referring to the East Carelia case, in which the world court declined to render an opinion because Soviet Russia, a non-member of the league objected, Rolin thought this precedent should be followed as regards the United States.

Latin-America again rallied to the support of the policy of approving the reservations when Senor Zumeta of Venezuela insisted that the conference should omit no endeavor to make the United States adherence to the court an accomplished fact.

"Assume, if you must, that acceptance accords the United States some privilege", he said, "but let us not forget the high moral and political significance of the adherence of the most powerful democracy the world has ever seen."

They were expected to reach Model Farms Field yesterday, but had not arrived by nightfall.

B. & O. Train Crew Blamed For Wreck

In Which Three Trainmen Were Killed and Several Other Persons Injured—Freight Crew Disregarded Signals Say Officials.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 3 (AP)—Disregard of signals by the crew of the locomotive of an eastbound freight train was responsible for the accident on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad last night in which three trainmen were killed and several other persons injured near Foley, Pa., it was stated at the executive offices of the railroad here today.

Passenger train No. 7, New York and Chicago express, was standing on the siding waiting for the approaching freight to clear the main track to allow it to proceed. The freight instead of stopping, according to the report received here, ran through the switch and into the passenger train, wrecking its two engines and derailing two cars containing baggage and express matter.

Engineer W. W. Collins of Cumberland and Fireman R. E. Albright of Henderson, Pa., were killed outright. Fireman W. C. Reynolds of the passenger train succumbed to his injuries today. Tom Whitman of Cumberland, fireman of the second passenger locomotive and a passenger, Mrs. Edith Winne of Toledo, Ohio, also were injured. Mrs. Winne had both legs bruised. As no passenger cars were derailed company officials here are at a loss to account for her hurts. She proceeded to her destination last night, the railroad company's report said.

Government and Liberty

The people who exercise the power are not always the same people over whom it is exercised; and the self-government spoken of is not the government of each by himself, but of each by all the rest. The will of the people, moreover, practically means the will of the most numerous or the most active part of the people; the majority, or those who succeed in making themselves accepted as the majority; the people, consequently, may desire to oppress a part of their numbers; and precautions are as much needed against this as against any other abuse of power.—John Stuart Mill.

THE COST OF GASOLINE

On August 6 the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Co. in California had the deepest well in the world at 7,606 feet they expected to go to 8,000 feet if necessary believing that they should find oil. The previous record was 7,500 feet near Los Angeles. Both holes were made with a rotary drill driven by electric power.

Such experiments are necessary for the real exploration of the earth's oil supplies. In these cases the formations indicated oil never until the test was made to the bitter end, could the thought be lost that oil existed.

The cost of these deep holes must be added to the price of every gallon of oil actually produced and used. The risk of drilling cannot be eliminated. If the world wants oil it can be had only as the result of constant exploration and development work and the American oil history is the most aggressive in the world.

IS THE BOY TO BLAME?

Said the son to the father "I would like a new aluminum finished roadster. I need three new suits of clothes, a new set of golf clubs, some new sport shoes, a couple of hats and a new fishing outfit to go on my vacation."

"Sure," said the father "go down town and buy these things and charge them to me."

The following month the bills came in together with a "few" others, which were necessary to round out the boy's equipment for his holiday. The father raised the roof with his complaints. Naturally he got no sympathy as the wise ones said it was his own fault for encouraging his family in such extravagance.

Along comes an election and candidates for office or proponents of special measures tell us, as taxpayers, that they would like a few thousand dollars for this office, a million or two for a new commission, ten million or 100 million for some state enterprise, a few more motor cars for that bureau and dozens of extra jobs to pay political debts, not to mention several hundred new laws to be passed by the state legislature.

We say, "Sure that's all right," and vote for the program. A year later the tax bill comes in and then we raise the roof about the increasing cost of government.

But do we deserve any sympathy? Are we any different from the indulgent father?

Don't blame the boy, and don't blame the office holder too much, for the father is responsible for the actions of his children and his family expense, while we, as taxpayers, are responsible for the men we elect to office and our public expense.

A TRIUMPHANT FARMERETTE.

Once more male competitors have been defeated by a young woman in a test of physical strength or endurance, and this time in a business long supposed, in this country at least, to be exclusively masculine. At Durham, N. H., Miss Helen Bernaby defeated all comers in a state hand-mowing contest with the scythe. And it was no mere Maud Muller hay-raking to the tune of the poet's lyre. Sturdy young New England farmers, laboring in the sweat of their brows, left long swaths of grass or grain, and Helen Bernaby, wielding her scythe, left a longer swath behind her than did anybody else. This modern Helen may not be able to drive men to war by her beauty, as did Helen of Sparta and Troy, but she has the muscle and endurance that enabled her to beat lusty young farmers at their own game. Doubtless Mussolini will be pound to hear that Helen Bernaby is of Italian stock and that the young man she defeated was mostly of the other New England families of British descent.

It seems that Miss Bernaby is not merely a "one-thing" scythe champion, but has given her attention to farm work in general, planting, harvesting, milking and shipping her produce. The professional girl athlete may sniff but this young farmerette is more usefully and worthily employed than those who train to entertain others or to win in tennis. Reading that she wants to go to her state university and become an "agriculturist," one involuntarily wishes that instead of a stony New England farm, she possessed and could develop a rich acreage in the prairie region of the west, or were aided by the more favoring soil and climate of the best agricultural region of the south.

That Body of Yours

TREATMENT OTHER THAN DRUGS

In Mark Twain's biography we read in part this thought "What a wee little part of a person's life are his acts and his words. His real life is lived in his head and is known to none but himself. His acts and words are the thin crust of his world, the mass of him is hidden in its volcanic fires that toss and boil, and never rest, night and day."

And when you and I examine ourselves we must admit that the above is but true.

What is my thought?

That a physician examining a case for the first time is often at a great disadvantage because he cannot always grasp the type represented by the patient. Nor can he fathom all that is going on within the mind, or the soul if I may use the word, of his patient.

Now that we are learning something about the ductless glands, how the thyroid hurries actions the adrenals steady or slow them and so forth, we are also learning that mental states greatly influence these glands. Thus suppressed emotions, anger, fear, shame, affect all the processes of the body, heart, lungs, digestion, and others.

And so when the far sighted physician meets such a case, if he cannot find any organic trouble to account for certain symptoms he suggests another visit from the patient at a future date.

Our younger physicians are always looking for definite signs in order to account for definite symptoms, and with the increased knowledge gained for them by the laboratory, they really do more scientific work than many of their older brethren, but this matter of sizing up a "nervous" patient under some form of emotion comes only with "years and experience."

It is these nevous cases that have developed the mind specialist or the psychoanalyst as he is called. He "unwinds the tangled skein" in the patient's mind, and the patient starts over again, and does'nt make the same mistake in rewinding the things of life.

It is just here that one's religion would be of infinite help. It teaches that all is well, that spirit or breath was breathed into his body to be released again at earthly death, and that his body should be in proper condition to hold that precious spirit, that his mind should be calm so that the processes of his body may do fit and proper work. This means that "doubts, fears, disappointments" fade away.

In former days the doctor was also a priest. Most doctors still have to have priestly characteristics.

To have a thorough knowledge of the body in sickness and in health, and how to give the best medical advice is still the work of the physician. If a patient needs other advice and the physician feels unequal to the task, he should refer him to minister, priest, or other source of spiritual healing.

He is in need of such treatment.

Henry Hudson Sails Into New York Bay on Voyage of Discovery. September 3, 1609.

Henry Hudson, famous English navigator in the employ of some London merchants, attempted early in the seventeenth century to make a voyage from Great Britain to China and Japan through the polar seas north of Europe and Asia, but failing in his enterprise, he was employed for the same purpose by the Dutch East India Company, of Holland.

He sailed from the Texel in a yacht of ninety tons named the "Half Moon" with a select crew, April 6, 1609, and steered for the coast of Nova Zembla. His clerk, Robert Juet, who formerly had been his mate kept a dairy which is the authority for the events of the expedition as Hudson's record was lost.

On May 5 the northern extremity of the mainland was passed, but again the ice-barrier forbade his entrance to the polar seas. The crew became united in discontent against their commander and constrained him to give up the dangerous exploration in the northern waters. He sailed around the southern shores of Greenland, but was again repulsed by ice.

Sailing southward, he discovered the American continent off the coast of Maine. In Casco Bay he repaired his vessel, and here his crew became involved in quarrels with the Indians. Hudson then sailed southward as far as the Capes of Virginia touching at Cape Cod on the way. Returning, he discovered the mouth of Delaware Bay, but having encountered the shoals on the New Jersey Shore, he did not attempt to go farther.

Early in September he sailed into the Raritan Bay, south of Staten Island, on the 3rd entered what is now known as the harbor of New York, and for a week rode at anchor in the bay of Sandy Hook. While lingering here the crew treated the Indians unkindly, who attacked the "Half Moon" in canoes, an English sailor named Coleman, was killed by these savages.

From the north flowed a large river into New York Bay, which they believed would afford the desired northwest passage to the South Sea. He sailed up that stream for days, and was undeceived until he met fresh water in the Highlands. Judging from the computed distances of each day's progress it appears that they went as far as the present site of Albany, and the ship's boats as far as Troy. Here they abandoned their hopes, and on September 20 turned back toward the sea.

Hudson and his Dutch mate wished to winter at Newfoundland and to explore Davis' Straits in the following spring, but the rebellious crew would not agree to sail north and insisted on returning home.

The "Half Moon" sailed south far as the Chesapeake Bay, then turned toward Europe, intending to touch England before proceeding to Holland.

Hudson landed at Dartmouth, November 7 and told of his discoveries, when he learned that the unworthy monarch on England's throne, jealous of the advantage which the Dutch might derive from his discoveries, detained both ship and commander until the following July, when the "Half Moon" was sent back to her owners. Hudson, however, was prevented from returning to the Dutch employers, and commanded to use his talents in the interests of his own country.

Hudson sent a report of his discoveries to the Netherlands by a trusted hand, and the Dutch were quick to utilize to the utmost the mercantile advantages thus acquired by them.

Hudson returned to the service of his original company and undertook his fourth and last voyage. He sailed April 22, 1610, with twenty-three men and his young son on the "Discoverie", a ship of seventy tons.

Rounding the north of Scotland, they touched Iceland early in May. Here continued dissatisfaction of the crew became so serious that Hudson could appease them only with great difficulty. Violence increased and Hudson disciplined the aggressors too severely.

In spite of this handicap he proceeded, spending the entire summer in exploring the extensive bay since known by his name. They wintered there and their supply of provisions became so low they subsisted almost entirely upon wild fowl. But these disappeared in the spring, when Hudson injudiciously divided the small remnant of provisions into equal parts and distributed it to the crew.

When the ship was once more free from the ice the crew mutinied and took command of the ship. Hudson with his son, two officers and five sick sailors were placed in a small boat and were abandoned to their fate.

Years afterward, Abacus Prichet, one of the conspirators, confessed the crime, and an expedition was sent from England to search for Hudson and his companions, but no trace of them was ever found.

Corporal Marsh, Co. G, 26th Infantry, in charge of the recruiting Station here says that at the present time there are eight hundred and nineteen officers in the Regular Army of the United States who started their military career as an enlisted man, or as commonly called a buck private. These officers are distributed in the following grades: 2 major generals, 5 brigadier generals, 48 colonels, 133 lieutenant colonels, 176 majors, 204 captains, 73 first lieutenants, and 178 second lieutenants. Of the above in addition to having service as enlisted men 151 are graduates of the United States Military Academy.

In order for an enlisted man to enter the United States Military Academy he must have at least one year of service in the Regular Army and be under 22 years of age. The entrance examinations are competitive and those obtaining the highest average are appointed After four years at the Academy they are graduated and commissioned a second lieutenant in the various branches of the service.

Another way for an enlisted man to obtain a commission in the service is to take the examination direct for a second lieutenancy. These examinations are held yearly and are open to enlisted men with one year's service between the ages of twenty-one and thirty. A minimum passing mark is set for these examinations and all that make this mark are commissioned.

In order that as many young men as desire may enter the army with a view to taking the examination for either West Point or a direct commission the War Department has authorized the enlistment of men for a period of one year

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

GETTING READY FOR PARIS CONVENTION

Though it is more than a year before the 30,000 American veterans begin swarming into Paris for the ninth annual national convention of the American Legion, members of the Paris post of the Legion, known as Post No. 1, are already actively engaged in preparing what promises to be one of the greatest receptions ever given a convention. Under the leadership of Hugh A. Bayne, commander of the Department of France in the American Legion, an intensive campaign is now in progress among Legionnaires in Paris to double the membership of the French department in order that there may be as large a number of men as possible available for service when the "Second A. E. F." lines up for the big parade down the Champs Elysees in September, 1927.

According to reports received by Bowman Elder of Indianapolis, national chairman of the Legion's France convention committee, Commander Bayne anticipates having the largest American reception committee ever known in France ready for the Paris convention. It is the plan of the France department of the Legion to make every member of the department an active member of the reception committee. The Department of France, according to Commander Bayne, contemplates having at least 1,500 men on the committee.

Commander Hugh A. Bayne.

Commander Bayne is well able to assume responsibility for acting as the official head of the reception committee in September, 1927. As a lieutenant colonel on the judge advocate's staff of the first A. E. F. he gave distinguished service, for which he was decorated by the French and American governments. Since the war, as an international lawyer in Paris, he has been closely associated with the problems that have arisen between the United States and France.

Under the direction of the France convention committee of the Legion, plans for the Paris convention are going forward rapidly. Arrangements are being completed for the guard of honor, a distinctive body of men which, in addition to being one of the features of the great parade, will render a unique service to the thousands of American veterans and their families who take part in the convention, by acting as information bureaus and rendering general assistance. The guard of honor will be distinctively uniformed and will represent every department of the Legion.

Under the direction of John J. Wicker, Jr., national travel director for the France convention committee, details on the matter of transportation and housing are being arranged in such a way that a veteran may have the privilege of selection from a great variety of steamship transportation which fits his purse. A limited number of accommodations, including steamship and hotels abroad with transportation in France, are being provided at a figure as low as approximately $175. Other grades will scale up to as high as $400, with a wide selection between the minimum and maximum figures.

Oldest Legionnaire

The oldest member of the American Legion is claimed by Miami post of the Legion, Miami, Fla.

John William Boucher, a member of the post, claims to be eighty-one years old.

Legionnaire Boucher began his military career in the Civil war and ended it only when the guns of the World war were silenced. In the World war he saw action with the Two Hundred and Fifty-seventh battery of the Canadian army. Boucher was fighting at the front handling "the Berthe" shells at the age of seventy-one years. King George received him at Buckingham palace.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

TEDDY TAHR TALKS

"The zoo people call me the Himalayan Tahr, but I like to be called Teddy Tahr," said the Tahr.

It is more simple, and it is said more easily.

"Of course my really real name is the Himalayan Tahr, for I came from the great Himalaya mountains of northern India, I did.

"I have nice hair, something the color of ink, brown and purple and black all sort of mixed up together, making one fine purplish color.

"And my hair blows about me as ink will fall from a bottle and run around—provided the bottle has been dropped.

"Of course my hair won't blow about in the wind if there isn't any wind!

"Yes, Mrs. Teddy, I am a goat and you are a goat and we are both glad to be goats

"We like goats, we like ourselves. We're different from regular, every-day goats, too."

"Ah, yes," said Mrs. Teddy Tahr, we're very different. We don't live in anyone's back yard, but we live in India, where we have our homes in the forest and near the high mountain peaks.

"And, if we don't live in India we live here in the zoo, where we are admired and thought interesting looking.

"To be an ordinary goat is past my understanding," continued Mrs. Teddy Tahr, "unless one is an ordinary goat and so can't help it.

"Of course in such a case it would be very difficult, very.

"But I'm glad I'm Mrs. Tahr, a wild goat from India, from where so many interesting animals come."

"And I'm glad I'm Teddy Tahr," said her mate, "and that the little ones are the Tahr children—for they enjoy the zoo and we can tell them so many stories of the free life which we both knew back in India.

"Yes, I'll be Daddy Teddy Tahr, the story teller!"

So Billie Brownie, who heard this news, gave it to the Breeze Brothers to tell to others, for he thought it quite interesting to think of Daddy Teddy Tahr as the story teller of the Tahr family.

But on Billie's way home he stopped off to see Mr. Walrus, whose fussy ways always amused Billie.

"As particular as ever?" he asked.

"Yes, indeed," said Mr. Walrus. "There are some creatures who will eat what is put in front of them. They are not fussy about their diet. Now, I am."

"Are you indeed?" asked the Harbor Seal, as Billie had just asked it, too.

"Dear me," said Mr. Walrus, "you are so unintelligent, Mr. Harbor Seal.

"Still, I am interesting enough to live in a zoo," said Mr. Harbor Seal.

"That doesn't mean much," said Mr. Walrus. "Now I am of far more importance."

"No doubt you're right, but tell me why?" said the Harbor Seal.

"You," said Mr. Walrus, "come from the coast along the Atlantic ocean. That is all well enough, but you're dull and you don't try to be interesting. Now I, on the other hand, am rarely found in a zoo because I insist upon certain kinds of food.

"Clams are what I like, clams are what I will have. And clams are often extremely hard to get, but they have to get them for me.

"And I'm so big. I weigh more than three thousand pounds. That's a good weight. My family live in the Arctic regions of America and Europe. But I must have clams or I won't stay in the zoo. Ah, that's the way to do things. Insist upon getting what you want."

"Well," said the Harbor Seal, "it is a good thing that all creatures aren't so fussy and that there aren't many of you around to go to all that bother about."

But Mr. Walrus was sitting on his flippers. His skin was very wrinkled and he looked half asleep. He was just enough awake to say again proudly that he was a particular Atlantic Walrus and that was what Billie Brownie wanted to hear.

A Busy Family

"What's yer old's father?" asked the visitor.

"In the weeds shootin' squirrels," answered Pickaninny Jim.

"What's yuh brother?"

"Down town shootin' craps."

"What's yuh mother?"

"In the 'mansion, shootin' the chutes."

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

Considerable fading, static that varied from just a little to a whole big lot, eccentricity in direction and a few other things kept reception from being first class last night.

Notwithstanding all this, Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati stations were received, though in a greatly debilitated manner as compared with the wonderful reception a few nights ago.

After broadcasting for a year on 5,000 watts power, Radio Station WOK, Homewood, Ill., will step into the real super-power class within the next few weeks, according to Norman S. Manderich, chief engineer. This will be done by installing a 20,000 watt transmitter, by more than doubling the height of the antenna towers, and by the use of a new type of antenna designed to greatly increase signal strength. The new towers will be 300 feet high. It is expected that they will be erected and the new transmitter and antenna installed by the end of September. The improvements planned, station officials assert, will make WOK one of the best-heard broadcasting stations in the United States, putting it in a class with the experimental stations KDKA, WGY, WJZ and KOA.

Huge Task To Electrify Farms

Basle, Switzerland, Sept. 3 (AP).—Expenditure of $1,800,000,000 will be required before one-fourth of the farms in the United States can have electric light and power service.

This estimate was contained in the paper prepared by Dr E. A. White, of Chicago, director of the Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture, read here today, at the World Power Conference.

"Some conception of the magnitude of the undertaking to make electric light and power service from large generating plants available to any significant per cent of the 6,371,617 farms of the United States," Doctor White's paper said, "may be obtained by employing a financial yardstick."

Equipment Needed.

"It is conservatively estimated that present transmission and distribution systems bring electrical service within reasonable distance of 1,500,000 farms. This is slightly under one-fourth of the total. Allowing a minimum average cost of $1,500 per mile of distribution line and assuming that the density of customers will be three farms per mile, this represents an investment of $600,000,000."

Dr. White pointed out that the making available of electricity to farms would not solve the problem as buildings must be wired and equipment on farms adapted to electricity.

"It is convervatively estimated," he continued, "that for these purposes the individual farmer will spend ultimately a minimum of twice the cost of the distribution system required to reach his farm. The amount may be greater than this, but the figure assumed will serve for the present objective.

"This will mean $800 per farm, or $1,200,000,000 for the total number under consideration."

Represents Large Bodies.

Members of Doctor White's committee, whose endeavor is "to make electric service something more than a potential factor in rural development," includes representatives of the American Farm Bureau federation, Amerlacn Home Economics association, American Society of Agricultural Engineers, General Federation of Women's clubs, individual plant manufacturers, the National Association of Farm Equipment manufacturers, National Electric Light association, the National Grange, and the United States Departments of Agriculture, Commerce and the Interior.

FALL WHEAT NEEDS FIRMER SEED BED.

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Wheat makes its best growth when seeded in a firm seed bed. If the soil is plowed four to six weeks before seeding time, rains will probably compact it enough so that cultivation in preparation for planting will make the condition satisfactory, according to the agronomy department at the State College of Agriculture here.

If the plowing is done shortly before planting, there is danger that the seed bed will be too loose. A loose surface with the lower half of the plowed soil firm is best, and in newly plowed land this condition can be brought about by going over it with a disc harrow set with little throw or with a corrugated roller. The corrugated roller, however, is not as satisfactory as the disc.

A smooth roller is sometimes used but this compacts the surface more than it packs the soil below, and so does not produce the desired condition. A spring-tooth harrow or a peg-tooth harrow may be of some service, but the disc is best and the corrugated roller is usually considered second choice, the department says.

The packing done by horses when the soil is being prepared is very desirable, and packing by tractor wheels is not harmful when the soil is dry. The packing done by a heavy tractor may be very harmful on clay soils, however, if it is wet below the surface.

To Take Taggart's Name Out of Book

Doubleday, Page and Company Agree to Delete Democratic Leaders Name from Edna Ferber's New Novel.

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—Tom Taggart, Democratic leader of Indiana, Thursday won his protest against the use of his name for that of a character depicted as a gambler in Edna Ferber's new novel, "Show Boat."

Nelson Doubleday, vice-president of Doubleday, Page and Company, publishers, said today the fiction gambler's name would be changed in all subsequent editions of the novel. A $100,000 libel suit was threatened by Mr. Taggart unless the publishers deleted his name from future editions.

Mr. Taggart was informed of the publisher's compliance with his demand, Mr. Doubleday said. A name having the same number of letters as the one originally used for the character will be substituted.

"This business of using true names in fiction is bad stuff," said Mr. Doubleday. "The use of Mr. Taggart's name was purely incidental, and was not essential to the story. Any other name will do just as well, and since Mr Taggart objected we were only too glad to make the change."

LEGION SUPPORTING MATHEWSON MEMORIAL

From coast to coast the call has gone up throughout the many posts of the American Legion to rally to the support of the national movement to raise two distinct memorials to a departed comrade. Christy Mathewson, in whose death they lost a comrade and "buddy" of unimpeachable character, won his way into the hearts of the men of this organization as he did into those of all who knew him in private life. It is written, in part, on the records of the American Legion while assembled in National Convention in Omaha, Nebraska, in October, 1925: "His unselfish conduct, his unswerving devotion to the spirit of fair play, his constant appreciation, in his peculiar position, of the value of righteous living, all characteristic of the life of this soldier and gentleman, shall ever suggest emulation of those high ideals of his comrades and the citizens of this nation alike and shall, therefore, result in a sturdier, healthier and cleaner America."

The Legion never forgets, and the men who took part in the great battle of '17, '18 and '19 still carry the colors in a call of this nature. The Christy Mathewson Memorial at Saranac Lake, New York, where he died, will be built by his friends and comrades of the American Legion and the Disabled Army Veterans. It will be a club house and community center for the unfortunate victims of the same illness that took Matty from this life of ours and will always stand as emblematic of a life clean and honestly used.

The second memorial will be erected at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa., befitting a son of Bucknell and the spot where Matty now rests. The Memorial Rotunda will be a monument for all time. Here will be hung the portraits of the masters and the heroic figure of the game, to which Matty gave the best years of his life, and here will rest the trophies and relics of the one truly American sport. The Christy Mathewson Memorial Foundation, of which the Hon. James J. Davis, U. S. Secretary of Labor, is the chairman of the National Committee is located at 41 East 42nd street, New York city.

U.S. Pays Panama Last Installment

Of $25,000,000 Fund Which Latin-American Government Demanded As Result of Panama Canal Negotiations.

Washington, Sept 3 (AP)—A romantic chapter of Latin-American diplomatic history was brought to an end Thursday when the United States treasury paid to Colombia the last installment of the $25,000,000 she demanded as a result of the circumstances attending the building of the Panama Canal.

Thursday's payment of $5,000,000 was the fifth of like amount handed over to Colombia since the celebrated Colombian treaty was ratified in 1921 after a long fight.

Just before the canal project reached fruition Panama, then a part of Colombia, declared her independence. President Roosevelt was accused of having intervened prematurely on the side of the Panamas, in order to secure from them the cession of territory needed for the canal. This Roosevelt denied, but a decade later President Wilson negotiated the $25,000,000 treaty "to restore cordial friendship with Colombia and although the senate once refused to ratify, it reversed itself after President Harding had come into office and seconded the request of Wilson. The senate amended the treaty, however, to eliminate an apology included in the original draft.

Eleanor Gunn Says

That wall-flower and nasturtium shades are beginning to be seen, instead of just predicted

That scintillating evening frocks are almost as popular at smart night clubs here as in Paris

Reports of Deauville style sensations are largely concerned with plaids in arresting combinations

That a rather elaborate vein is creeping into sports clothes

The prevalence of vivid colorings, even at court presentations, warrants a prediction that vivid shades will be the best liked for autumn evenings, although white is most often noted at present

More jumpers are blousing at a low line than hanging straight just now, and many are opened to the band which finishes them in either a tie or in a buttoned effect

Shark skin is much used for purses and for shoes

Royal blue was one of the colors most emphasized in reports of style happenings at Deauville and other foreign resorts.

Recamier and nymph are among the newest shades reported for fall

The artificial corsage continues to be important Two flowers are being used more often than one with evening dress—one at the shoulder

In negligees, the tendency is toward the more tailored line, even in sumptuous fabrics

Some of the newest fall models have both a cape back as well as a bloused waist-line

While there is considerable talk of velvet for fall hats, as well as dresses, one continues to hear of and see felts Antelope hats with matching bags have considerable appeal.

Shades of red continue important with greens holding their own and African browns forging to the front.

Many of the latest hats have a back drape which elongates the side-line

Crystal jewelry is being worn.

ZENA

Zena, Sept 2—The church fair and supper held August 26 was a great success, over $200 being cleared. Supper was served to the largest crowd ever gathered at the hall. All wish to express their appreciation to such a goodly number of patrons Many came from Newburgh, Kingston, Ashokan, West Hurley, Woodstock and High Woods. Also many summer guests who partook of the supper. The fancy table was well patronized, not a single article remaining. And as for refreshments, they were disposed of long before the evening passed.

Muskrat Edible

The muskrat, lord of the swamp and marsh, is declared to be good as food.

Few Women

Still use old hygienic methods. Charming freshness, true protection, this new way ...discards like tissue

TO help women meet every day embarrassment is the object of a new hygiene. A way that ends the hazards of the old-time "sanitary pad," that ends the embarrassment of disposal.

Eight in 10 better-class women today employ "KOTEX."

Wear lightest gowns and frocks without a second thought, any day, anywhere.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

Deodorizes. Ends ALL fear of offending.

✓ Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying, "KOTEX." No embarrassment.

In fairness to yourself, try this new way. Costs only a few cents. Twelve in a package.

KOTEX

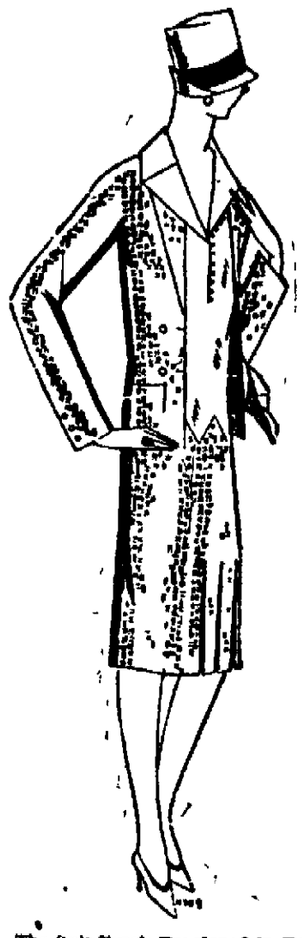

No laundry—discard like tissue

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

THAT DRESS FOR TRAVEL OR THE FIRST COOL DAYS MAY BE OF MOIRE OR GROSGRAIN VELVET BUT CLOTH IS BEST OF ALL.

The cloth dress as well as the tailleur—cloth, of course—is singled out for fall. There are interesting developments in crepes, especially those of the crepe satin genre, but nearly all of the style experts are inclined to emphasize the importance of cloth.

Such silks as grosgrain and moire warrant discussion, and velvet has too often been mentioned in fall predictions to be dismissed with a word Yet for all that, it seems that no woman can be regarded as having a proper wardrobe unless she has several cloth frocks.

The Suit-Frock Developed in Rose-Color Velvet Faconne on a Gauze Ground. The Short Coat Is Double-Breasted and Trimmed With Brass Buttons, and the Gilet Blouse Is Fashioned of White Satin.

It seems unnecessary to add that all woolens which have a style appeal are soft They must have proven themselves suitable to such purposes as pleating, let us say. Some argue that the smartest woolens have a two-tone pattern which it is difficult to see at a distance, but it is a pattern for all that. There is, of course, the fascinating possibility of using silk and wool together, even the possibility of substituting velvet for silk.

One has not become familiar with Paris style notes without having made the arresting discovery that a jacket and skirt need not match There is, indeed, something to be said for their not matching, and a great deal to be said for the chic of the contrasting coat, usually inclined to shortness.

There is no information as to the literature of the Gauls. If they had any, short writing was forbidden to the Druids, who were the repositories of the lore and learning of the ancient Celts on the continent of Europe.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

A meal should be regarded as an important end in itself It should be taken at leisure, body and mind being given up to it, and to agreeable social intercourse

"GO TOGETHER" FOODS

In the study of foods, if we plan the proper menus we will not feast one day and fast the next.

We should avoid serving of cream soup, fat meat, sweet potatoes, a vegetable with drawn butter sauce and a salad with a rich mayonnaise dressing—all dishes of high fuel value—in one meal.

Dishes hard to digest should be withheld entirely from children. The custom of feeding small children away from the family table is a good one, as then they need not see or want foods not good for them.

Concentrated foods should be served with things which will serve to dilute them, hence the custom of serving dry crackers with cheese or cheese combined with rice, macaroni, hominy or bread and milk in various dishes.

Butter, another concentrated food is used on bread and potatoes, making a balanced ration

Small portions of foods well-masticated will be well-digested while overeating will cause trouble.

If the family has a light meal for one of the day it should be the cook's plan to make up the deficiency in the next meal

Planning the meals a week or more ahead gives the housewife an opportunity to use wisely the foods at hand and thus avoid waste.

Condiments aid digestion, add flavor and enhance the pleasure of many foods; they should be served sparingly and never given to children

The reason for serving apple sauce with pork is that the acid of the apple helps in the digestion of the pork and so it seems an agreeable combination.

It is a good plan for the housewife to keep a chart of foods that are good to serve together. Roast of beef, Yorkshire pudding, lamb with peas, steak with fried onions or mushrooms and such other vegetables as are appropriate

Take occasional trips to some tearoom or hotel where food is served nicely, to learn new ways of serving food and new combinations and garnishes.

Woodstock, Sept 2—The friends of F. Bardner Clough will be pleased to know that he has returned to his home in Woodstock after an absence of four months Mr Clough motored west to visit relatives and incidentally stopped over at many places of interest He visited the art colonies at Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Colorado Springs and Denver. He utilized a good deal of his time in writing up the art news of these colonies which was at once taken by western publications. The last two weeks he took a turn at farm work in Wyoming to get in shape for the long trip home Ten days ago he left his sister's ranch in Laramie, Wyoming, and after a trip with fine weather and good roads, he pulled into Woodstock, accompanied by Mrs. Clough, who went west to meet her husband and motor home with him He said that he was very glad to be home.

SMART STYLING MARKS JUNIOR MIDSEASON MILLINERY MOD

AN OUTSTANDING enthusiasm among the youth of this day is that of self-expression Nor is it a mere theory confined to classroom discussion. In the commercial world, as well as in every other walk of life, youth and its individual needs and preferences are being given a very definite recognition There is the matter of choosing one's hats, for instance Nowadays juvenile, junior and Miss Subdeb are invited to visit a special section or salon, if you please, which is distinctly their own realm where millinery designed by specialized talent is displayed in tempting array

A glance at the collection of charming hats shown in this picture reveals the fact that millinery for the younger generation is vastly interesting these days. In each model the spirit of youth is maintained and there is every evidence that infinite care and attention is being lavished on millinery for the growing girl To be sure the first is made of quilted silk after the manner of grown up's smart styling, but somehow the designer has contrived to adapt it to the sch girl age

In the top model to the right is again the medium, although t time it is corded and tucked—wh goes to show the importance of all-fabric hat.

A generous bow of hemmed taf gives a girlish aspect to the hat low to the left in the group The the-face effect given by the plait of taffeta across the front assu becomingness

Very colorful is the large hat the right The crown is formed knitted visca in brilliant yello greens and blues offset by a brim ing and a rosette of shirred taf which may be of any bright shade sired.

Leghorn, that ever faithful frie of youth, appears to picturesque a vantage when crowned and bou with silk and embellished with t handmade flowers such as one sees the concluding hat of this group

SMOKY CLOUD AND PILLAR OF FIRE TOPS MEMORIAL

Kansas City, Sept. 3 (AP).—A pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night, thrust heavenward atop a giant shaft of stone, soon will be a living reminder of the sacrifices of Kansas City's soldier dead of the World War.

Experts in color effects have labored for weeks to produce the correct effect of fire at night, and at last have succeeded. Steam and electric lights are used. On the cloud of steam, swaying gently in the night breeze, is reflected through lenses of the proper color the light from electric lamps. The effect is that of a coneshaped pillar of fire. In the daytime the effect is that of a pillar of smoke.

The steam floats from a great bowl, borne aloft by a grey stone shaft 217 feet high. The bowl is supported by the upstretched wings of carven angels. The shaft rises from a wall more than four hundred feet long, flanked by large buildings. The massive Liberty memorial is located on a hill directly south of the Union Station.

The memorial site was dedicated November 1, 1921, during the American Legion national convention, in the presence of President Coolidge, then vice-president; General John J. Pershing, General Baron Jacques of Belgium, General Diaz of Italy, Marshal Foch of France and Admiral Beatty of England.

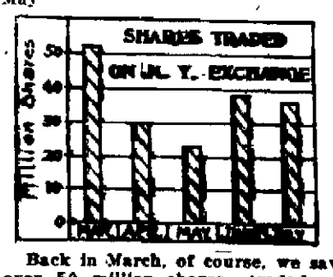

The cost of the memorial has been estimated at $2,000,000, raised by public subscription.

Stock Trading Has Been Good.

Babson Park, Mass., Sept. 3.—(Special)—There is little doubt but what the favorable attitude that has continued on the part of the Coolidge administration toward big business has helped to sustain the general strength of the stock market this summer. Both June and July saw almost double the amount of shares traded on the New York Exchange that were handled during May

Back in March, of course, we saw over 50 million shares traded on that exchange, however, as compared with the scant 23 million shares in May. A significant point to remember just now is that many stocks at present are priced on the basis of known or estimated current earning power. In other words, present earning power has been discounted, and what future earning power will be is in question.

Little "Rest" in Sleep

The average amount of "absolute rest" that is gotten during a night's sleep is only 11½ minutes, according to Prof. H. H. Johnson of the Mellon Institute, at Pittsburgh. The remainder of the time, he says, there is usually muscular or mental action, such as take place during a dream. Seven and three-quarters hours of sleep is plenty for any normal man or woman, the scientist declares.

Around About TheEmpire State

(By The Associated Press.)

Foreign tourist comprise a large part of the travellers who visit Lake George, in the southeastern Adirondacks, according to the captain of one of the excursion boats which plies the lake.

The captain estimates that fully ninety per cent of the passengers on his craft, which makes daily runs through the southern part of the lake, have been from outside of the United States. Such persons, he says, always show a keen interest in the historical and scenic features of the lake.

With the birth of a son, Ernest, to Mrs. John Branchaud, 28, of Massena, she becomes the mother of eleven children seven of whom are living. Both the father and the mother are of French-Canadian extraction.

Village firemen at North Creek long wanted new apparatus and a suitable fire station.

When the village decided to purchase the new apparatus, and the new home, the fire-fighters were so grateful that they voted to dig the cellar, in order to save the community as much money as possible.

David E. Lillie of Putnam is going to paraphrase the old adage, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good" into "It's a bad bolt of lightning that doesn't help someone."

Lillie had suffered for years with a bad case of rheumatism which practically made his left arm useless, until recently when he was struck by lightning. He was knocked unconscious, but when he recovered, it was to discover that his left arm was as good as new.

The same bolt shattered the crystal on Lillie's watch, but failed otherwise to damage the timepiece.

EAT LESS HEAVY FOOD AFTER FIFTY YEARS OLD

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Eat less food after fifty, is the advice of the New York state college of home economics here. "Persons past this age are as a rule less active than before and so require less food for muscular work. In addition, with advancing years the internal processes slow up and less fuel is needed to keep them going.

The difficulty many persons have in reducing the amount they eat is due to their long established habits of eating. Tendency to gain weight means that too much food is being taken for the amount of bodily activity. The excess is stored as fat.

After sixty, according to the college, even less food is required as the internal processes are decidedly retarded and the digestive system has more trouble caring for any oversupply. Because the digestive juices do not flow as easily as in earlier years, rich, fatty foods are best omitted from the diet. Sauces, pastries, rich puddings, and fried foods should be avoided and the meals should be simply prepared.

Less meat and other building foods are needed when the wear and tear on the body is reduced, but the essentials of a well balanced diet are necessary at all ages. The protein foods, such as milk, cheese, and the proteins in cereals which are not as likely to putrefy as meat, are better for older persons. Eggs are also easier for the body to handle than meat. Fruit and vegetables may be eaten if they can be chewed well and if they do not cause fermentation. When they are hard for the body to take care of, fruit juice or cooked pulp may be eaten, and vegetables may be mashed and served in soup.

Sorrows' Proportions

Let us moderate our sorrows. The grief of a man should not exceed proper bounds, but be in proportion to the blow he has received.—Juvenal.

GEYSER WATER DRINKING BRINGS QUICK BENEFIT

Stomach, Digestion and Kidneys Responsive to its Medicinal Efficacy

The faith which people have in Geyser, sparkling table water, is justified. The State of New York would not have gone to such great expense to take the famous Geyser spring under its supervision if age-renowned medicinal Mecca had not long ago proven its great worth in relieving human ailments.

Delicious and appetizing, refreshing and stimulating, Geyser goes with the modern, soft food diet to prevent the generation of acids which upset the stomach, derange digestion, bring on headaches, eye troubles, faulty elimination and the other complications that often follow acid indigestion. There is no use arguing about whether Geyser will or will not benefit you. Ask your doctor or order a case of Geyser from your dealer. Drink a bottle with each meal and another before retiring. Hundreds of thousands travel to Saratoga for this purpose every year and have done so for generations and generations. You may have Geyser served on your own table at very nominal expense.

Drink a bottle of Hathorn natural laxative water upon arising. It will sweep out the dietary mistakes of yesterday and correct habitual faulty elimination. Hathorn is a sparkling, naturally carbonated, pleasant tasting, medicinal water.

Sold in Borst Grocery Co.'s stores and by other high-class dealers.

Dempsey Calm After Flareup

Show Girls and Jimmy Dougherty Ruffle the Champion on Thursday —Gives Sparring Partners Good Cuffing.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 3 (AP) — Considerably cooled down from his irritating experiences of yesterday, Jack Dempsey, after a refreshing sleep, prepared today for another hard day of training for his championship bout with Gene Tunney in Philadelphia, September 23.

The champion was unable to conceal his irritation when he came to the dog track for yesterday's workout and found the stage monopolized by a dozen or so show girls, dancing in skin-tight bathing suits, to the tunes thumped out by a jazz band. As he came through the gates, one creature, in a pink suit, doing one kind of a dance or another, was the center of attraction.

Dempsey promptly ordered the entertainers off the platform, the singers to be seen and not heard, the dancers to refrain from dancing

"I'm sorry about the whole affair," Dempsey said today. "I know they meant well, but that sort of thing has no place in a training camp I am here for business and nothing else My camp is not a cabaret It wasn't by my authority that they appeared here I didn't know anything about it until I arrived"

Dempsey refused to comment further on the incident but his irritation was apparent in the way he cuffed sparring partners all over the place in a workout cut short by a downpour of rain

Dougherty No Longer a Friend.

The champion also declined to comment on the outburst of Jimmy Dougherty of Philadelphia, once a warm friend, whom he refused to greet when they met in the offices of Mayor Bader yesterday They met by accident The mayor, pointing to Dougherty, asked:

"Don't you know your old friend here?"

Dempsey quickly turned his back, declaring:

"He's no friend of mine."

Dougherty, reddened with humiliation, protested bitterly after the incident and related at length a story of favors done the champion. Among others, he declared he had turned down an offer of a "staggering amount of money," to give the decision to Tommy Gibbons, or declare the bout a draw, when the St. Paul heavyweight fought Dempsey in Shelby, Montana, three years ago.

He said he refused because of his interest in Dempsey and the loyalty of trust placed upon him. The offer, he said, came from a New York gambler representing a gambling syndicate which desired to make a cleanup

The impression prevailed around the Dempsey camp today that Dougherty appeared here expecting a flareup from the champion and came for that purpose. The Philadelphian, however, insists that he had no idea that Dempsey did not care to see him, although he admits that relations have been strained for some time.

Tunney Attracts Large Crowds

Challenger Kept Indoors Thursday Because of Rainy Weather—Has a Heavyweight Cook.

Stroudsburg, Pa., Sept. 3 (AP).—Although he has been in Stroudsburg only one day, Gene Tunney has made his presence felt by attracting visitors to the town. When he left the Glenbrook Golf Club for a walk yesterday afternoon after a steady rain had kept him indoors all day, there were a score of folks from other towns on hand

Today as he set out on the first of his daily road workouts, early though it was, a crowd saw him trot off down the abandoned road he will use

Tunney declared today that he was comfortable and able to do his training properly in his new quarters. The challenger, Lou Fink, his trainer, "Pants" Lawrence, his companion from the Adirondacks, and the sparring partners have eating and sleeping quarters in the clubhouse

Appropriately enough a heavyweight chef is installed in the kitchen to prepare food for Tunney and his gang George Ransberry, one of the best cooks in Monroe county, has been drafted to preside over the Tunney kitchen He weighs almost as much as Tunney and Dempsey combined

The clubhouse is in the midst of an attractive nine-hole golf course of 3,313 yards with par of 37. Tunney while a fair golfer did not succumb to the lure of the links at Speculator. He will play here frequently, following the lead of Tommy Gibbons, who is a good golfer, as well as a clever boxer Gibbons could probably take Gene's measure on the course for around 90 is the challenger's normal game while Gibbons flirted with par.

Sailors' Gold

One of the most curious treasures hunted by sailors in tropical waters is ambergris.

This has nothing to do with amber. It is a secretion shot into the water by certain sperm whales, and is, metaphorically speaking, worth its weight in gold.

Curiously enough, although when taken from the whale it has a most unpleasant smell, when exposed to the air its odor becomes pleasant, and it is used largely in the perfumery trade.

By old tradition, ambergris is treasure trove, and the skipper and crew who have the luck to find it may divide the proceeds of its sale.

Fabulous tales are told of beachcombers who dozed in rags on tropical seashores to find on awakening a lump of ambergris washed to their feet by the waves.

Monarch Put Above Law

"The king can do no wrong," is a legal axiom that still holds good in England. James I so firmly believed in this principle that he carried it to the extent of claiming divine right for everything he did. Even now the king's person is absolutely exempt from arrest. He never can be sued in a court of law, nor is he required to attend and give evidence, says the Montreal Family Herald. As he is above the judges, he has the power of remitting any punishment imposed on a subject.

A curious result of the king's legal position is that he is debarred from arresting or giving information that will lead to the arrest of a criminal, since nobody can be both judge and prosecutor.

A Painful Reminder

For a long time the restaurant proprietor had out a sign—"Home Cooking." Then he removed it. "I see," remarked a customer, "that the old sign has gone." "Yes, I took it down." "But why?" "Well, I came to the conclusion that it was doing the place no good. I got so many kicking personally. A great many would take a look at that sign and then hurry on."—Weekly Scotsman.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press.)

The distance between the St. Louis Cardinals and their pursuers in the National League has jumped to a two game margin over Cincinnati and three games over Pittsburgh as the result of one moist day.

While the Cardinals were taking two games from Chicago, 2 to 0 and 9 to 1, rain halted the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati fray after three and a half innings. Thus the weather man took a hand in the stirring race for league honors and by one shake of his water bucket doubles for the dealers in the first place margin they have battled for so bitterly during the week. Rain also stopped the Boston-New York game, only other contest scheduled in the league.

St. Louis took full advantage of the spotlight thrown upon them yesterday. Grover Alexander, former Cub ace, who was waived to the Cardinals in the middle of the season, toyed with his former mates, shutting them out 2 to 0 with three hits. Charley Root, hurling against the master, was touched for eight. Alexander led the attack himself to make certain of victory, for his double, followed by Douthit's triple and Southworth's double provided the only runs of the game.

The Cubs were almost equally at a loss against Rhem in the second game. They hit him occasionally but with the Cardinal bats piling up a 9 to 1 edge behind him, it was no time to be miserly. Sheriff Blake, Osborn and Huntzinger felt the power of the St. Louis war clubs with Southworth, O'Farrell and Rogers Hornsby leading the powerful attack.

The fierce manner in which the St. Louis, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh have fought each other to a standstill this season is showing up in percentage figures. With St. Louis setting a hurricane pace, their percentage of wins to date is only .591. Only once in the long history of the National League has a team gained the pennant with a mark of less than .600. That was in 1915 when Philadelphia won their only pennant, and with an average of .592. Brooklyn won in 1920 and New York in 1922 with marks of .604.

Chicago recorded the highest average in the past 20 years with .763 in 1906. The New York Yankees are leading their circuit today with .620.

Rain again stopped hostilities among the leaders in the American League. The Detroit Tigers defeated St. Louis 6 to 3 in the only game played. The Tigers hit Caston and Wingard so soundly that in addition to their fourteen hits, ten of the enemy put outs were made by outfielders.

Both the New York-Philadelphia and Washington-Boston games were rained out.

Doubles Title to Remain in East

Either Williams and Richards or Tilden and Chapin Favored to Win National Tennis Title.

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 3 (AP).—The national doubles championship has entered its final stage with virtual assurance that the title will remain in the east for another year.

Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer of Texas, former inter-collegiate and present clay court champions, remained in the hunt today to dispute possession of the honors with two powerful Atlantic seaboard combinations. Their task appeared next to impossible, however, for this afternoon in the semi-finals they faced the defending titleholders, R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards, with a final round battle against William T. Tilden and Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., in the offing.

The chief threat of the far west passed from the chase yesterday with the elimination of William M. Johnston and Edward G. Chandler.

Matches in the national mixed doubles held the interest of the gallery late in the afternoon, particularly as defeat loomed for what, on the surface, seemed an unbeatable lineup. Mrs. Molla Mallory, national women's champion, and Tilden, men's singles titleholder, had their hands full, however, with Martha Bayard and Jacques Brugnon, the New Jersey girl and her French partner compelling the leaders of American lawn tennis to travel three exciting sets to win at 9-11, 6-3, 6-4.

The final round was reached in the national veterans' doubles, with A. J. Gore of Washington, D. C., and Claude Butlin of Mexico City qualifying to meet the 1925 champions, Samuel Hardy and Walter L. Pate.

British Organize to Capture the Tourist

London.—British merchants do not like the fact that far more American money is spent by tourists in France than in the British Isles. Hotels, shopkeepers, ship owners and several organizations are forming a co-operative body to attract visitors. They have adopted the slogan "Come to Great Britain."

They assert that Great Britain is behind in letting the world know that it has as much to offer as a holiday resort as the Continent. They propose not only to tell the world, particularly the United States and the British Dominions, about the British Isles, but to help the tourists in every way to enjoy their visits. They also will encourage reciprocal visits of Britishers to the United States.

Neuter Possessive

Originally the pronoun "his" served as the neuter singular possessive. About the Sixteenth century this began to be replaced with "it." Thus Ben Jonson wrote, "It shall fright all it friends with borrowing letters," and Shakespeare, "Go to it grandam, child." About 1600 this form, in turn, began to be replaced by "its," with the apostrophe. Rare in Shakespeare, and not to be found in the King James Bible of 1611, this form became the common literary one by 1623. Later in the same century the apostrophe was dropped, conforming to the possessives of the other personal pronouns, and since then it has almost always been written "its."

Mysterious Spleen

There is still one lucky organ in the human body about which we know little—concerning what its function is, at least. That organ is the spleen. The English physiologist, Barcroft, pointed out recently that its use is a mystery to us even now.

The ancient Greeks, he said, are said to have improved their athletic prowess by cutting out the spleen; their argument being it was the cause of the stitch in the side that sometimes stops the best runners. This, however, does not appear to be justified by the records.

Mended "Busted" Egg

What the old story-book legend declares "all the King's horses and all the King's men" could not do by way of repairing "Humpty Dumpty," has been accomplished by an expert of the Field museum of natural history in assembling the fragments of an ostrich egg believed to be some 6,000 years old. It was found in the ancient ruins of Kish.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Soap Kills Germs

Ordinary kitchen soap, says Science Service, forms a lather that will kill pneumonia, diphtheria and streptococcus germs. The substitution of cocoanut oil for linseed oil in making this soap would make it destructive of typhoid organisms also, although it would be more irritating to the skin.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—The pressure of a week-end sales apparently having been completed by midday, stock prices surged forward this afternoon under the leadership of the high grade rails and public utilities. Trading was rather brisk for a pre-holiday session, though largely of a professional character.

Less concern was manifested over the money situation, due to the large volume of funds available in the call market at 4½ per cent. The increase in rediscounts and note circulation shown in the weekly Federal Reserve Bank statement were regarded as a reflection of the expanding fall demand for funds for commercial purposes.

United States Steel common, which sold down to 148¾ in the first hour, rallied to 151 by early afternoon on buying influenced by reports that the steel industry started September with operations above 83 per cent of capacity, or about five per cent above that of a fortnight ago. Oil shares also received better support on the stiffening of wholesale gasoline prices in the middlewest, and predictions of record-breaking earnings by some of the large independent companies.

Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Railway and Missouri Pacific preferred were added to the growing list of new 1926 high prices in the railroad group. Western Union moved up to a new high for all time at 148¾.

American Sumatra Tobacco, United Drug and Thompson's restaurants also broke through to new high levels. Increased activity also developed in the packing shares on reports that the industry had definitely turned the corner.

Needle Mystery

"A western Kansas man found the proverbial needle in the straw stack. How it got there he doesn't know, but after he slid down the stack it required an hour for the surgeon to get the needle out," so records the Salina Journal. It was probably a needlesome farmer lost when he "sowed" his wheat.—Capper's Weekly.

Cool Colors Helpful

Cool colors should be used in rooms having brilliant sunlight. Small rooms seem larger when decorated in cool shades. Cool colors are most suitable for informal rooms, cottage living rooms, bedrooms, nurseries, etc. They are, of course, best for rooms that are used chiefly in summer.

POULTRY

CARE OF PULLETS VERY IMPORTANT

Poultrymen are coming more and more to the conclusion that summer care of the young stock cannot be overemphasized. Observation throughout the state has shown that the success of a poultryman with a flock of laying birds is usually the reflection of his success in rearing the pullets.

It is generally acknowledged by the leading poultrymen that one does not have to raise poultry for very many years before the importance of clean, steadily, and well-grown pullets is recognized. In nine cases out of ten the flocks which experience trouble during the winter months are the flocks in which trouble was prevalent while they were on the range, according to L. M. Black, extension specialist in poultry at Rutgers university.

Growing a clean profitable pullet includes a great number of small steps which when put together assure success, says Mr. Black. As with the mature birds, the houses must be comfortable and clean. Overcrowding and overheating have their effect in stunting the growth of the birds, and so a square foot of floor space should be allowed to each growing pullet and, in addition, sufficient roosting space. On hot days the houses should be cool and comfortable.

Frequent house cleaning is practiced by the most successful poultrymen to help prevent a rapid spread of disease during warm, moist weather. This, says Mr. Black, is particularly effective against coccidiosis.

Alternate ranges which supply an abundance of green feed and some shade are the rule on the best farms in the state. The birds are never without a daily supply of green feed. Shade is considered essential during the hot days. The ground, now believed to be the source of many of our most troublesome diseases, is frequently cropped and cultivated so that the direct rays of the sun may act as a germicide.

Culled Poultry Flocks Are Earmark of Success

Exceptionally successful poultrymen who do not cull their flocks periodically are in the minority in New Jersey, according to the state poultry specialist. The practice is becoming universally recognized as essential for greatest profits.

Several advantages of culling, or slacker elimination, are mentioned by the specialist and first among them is simplicity and ease. Not a cent of outlay is necessary and the benefits are almost immediately received. Some hens are poor layers but great feeders. To wait for them to lay is to wait for something that will amount to little even if it does finally occur, for these birds soon quit.

Various characteristics distinguishing the slacker from the layer are used by poultrymen in clearing from their flocks all of the boarders. Appearance of the tail feathers, color of the comb and wattles, and shape of the body both to visual and manual examination, are among the signs read by poultrymen. Newcomers in the business are supplied, on request, with helpful bulletins by the New Jersey College of Agriculture, New Brunswick.

In addition to requiring no outlay, culling causes no loss. The eliminated birds are sold at good prices on the poultry meat market.

Because of the influence of heredity, the general laying average of a flock is materially raised over a period of years by persistent culling and the use of good cockerels. This factor is considered particularly important by leading poultrymen.

Fix Flavor of Eggs

In investigations made some years ago, by feeding nitrogenous and carbonaceous feeds, it was found that hens fed a ration of wheat, middlings, cottonseed meal and skim milk, produced eggs with a disagreeable flavor and odor, small yolks, and poor keeping qualities. On the other hand, hens fed largely on cracked corn and corn dough laid larger eggs with richer yolks and better flavor. When there was a proper blending of both nitrogenous and carbonaceous materials, there was improved flavor.

Poultry Facts

The well-fed, well-housed hen certainly knows her eggs.

Whitewash looks good on the outside of poultry houses, but on the inside it does good.

In ancient times capon meat was highly prized by epicures. It is growing in popularity in this country.

Deep cultivation of corn is not desirable and usually is detrimental, especially at the time of the last cultivation.

Disease usually gets into a flock through the weak fowls, which it attacks first. Keep these culled out and you'll have a healthier flock.

* * *

Roup may be caused by dampness or drafts in roosting quarters, or poorly ventilated roosting quarters. Underlying causes may be poor nutrition, lice, mites or other parasites.

Shark's Appetite

Eight Vets On K.H.S. Eleven

Local High School Grid Team Will Be Built Around Eight Veterans—Schedule For The Season.

Kingston High School football squad will have its first workout the opening week of school, with Friday afternoon, September 10, probably the date of the first light practice. Coach O'Leary who will again have charge of the Maroon and White grid eleven, will undoubtedly call a meeting earlier in the week for signing up prospects.

Eight Veterans.

Eight veterans will be available to build the team around this season. There may be even more regulars as it is not certain how many of last year's men will be back to school. Last season there were but five or six men out for the team who had received their "K" in football. Letter men from last season who will again be in school are Captain Ernest Smith, Emerson Davis, who was captain last season, John Watts, Edwards, Wonderly, Wilson, Jones and Donald Flick, last year's quarterback.

Smith Is Captain.

Ernest Smith, one of the mainstays of last year's Maroon and White eleven will captain the team this season. Smith was one of O'Leary's most dependable men during the '25 season and will be an able leader for this season's outfit. Donald Schoonmaker, assistant manager during the last season, will be manager of the squad.

Schedule Arranged.

Manager Schoonmaker has already arranged the 1926 schedule with September 25 the date of the opening game. The first DUSO League contest will be with Poughkeepsie High School, Kingston's traditional rival, on October 23.

The season's schedule is as follows:

September 25—Morris High of New York City.
October 2—Albany High.
October 9—Albany Academy.
October 16—St. Stephen's Freshmen.
October 23—Poughkeepsie High.
October 30—Middletown.
November 6—Peekskill.
November 13—Port Jervis.
November 20—Newburgh.

Poughkeepsie, Port Jervis, Middletown and Newburgh are DUSO League games.

Pro Football Men Will Meet

Kingston's Professional Football Squad Will Meet Tuesday to Outline Plans For the Coming Season.

A very important meeting of Kingston's professional football team has been called for Tuesday evening, September 7, in the Y. M. C. A., when the plans for the season will be talked over. Manager Edward Redhead is very desirous of having all the candidates present at this meeting as there are very important problems to be thrashed out at this conclave.

A suitable name for the eleven will be chosen at this meeting and also the style of uniform will be decided upon. Practice dates and several other small matters will be arranged at this meeting.

The team has already had three or four practices at the Athletic Field and about twenty candidates have turned out at these preliminary workouts. As soon as the team receives its equipment practice will begin in earnest as the opening game is scheduled with Newburgh on September 19. Three matches are scheduled on enemy gridirons before the first home match, October 10.

Six teams have entered this Hudson Valley League and in a month's time interest in pro football will be great within the Hudson Valley. Cities represented in the league are: Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Hudson, Wappingers Falls and Beacon. Gridiron stars of high school and college fame joined these teams and the highest type of matches are expected.

Indict Three For Mellett Murder

Canton, O., Sept. 3 (AP).—Ben Rudnor, Louis Mazer and Patrick Eugene McDermott today were indicted by the Stark county grand jury for the first degree murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, on July 16. Rudner, Massillon hardware merchant, was taken into custody shortly before the grand jury made its report to Judge Abram W. Agler.

Mazer, former Canton pool room proprietor, was formally charged with the murder in a warrant issued on August 16. He is at present in the Cuyahoga county jail, Cleveland, and is held also on a charge of conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law.

McDermott, of Nanty Glo, Pa., and Cleveland, is at large, having been sought throughout the nation since July 30 as "keyman" in the murder mystery.

Hadley In Accord With Coolidge

President Emeritus of Yale Declines Democratic Nomination for Senator Because He Is In Accord With Coolidge Policies.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 3 (AP).—Arthur Twining Hadley, president emeritus of Yale University, and nationally known economist, has been offered the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, but refused it because he is in accord with the policies of the present administration. The Democrats attempted to draft President Hadley for service so as to have some one who would seriously contest the issue with Hiram Bingham, present senator from Connecticut.

Many years ago President Hadley was a Democrat. He severed his connection with that party, however, when it split on the issue of Bryan and his silver standard. Since then he has been affiliated with the Republican party in the matter of beliefs and policies.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Perhaps Marie Kryl's $200,000 Greek fiancee, is a bit unfamiliar with the English alphabet. Anyhow the Chicago pianist was kept waiting nearly an hour at the pier for Spiro Hadji-Kyriakos, coming from abroad. He failed to appear under the proper letter for examination by customs agents. Now that dad Kryl has relented and decided not to make Marie forfeit $100,000 or marrying, wedding bells will ring shortly at Tarpon Springs, Fla.

Geneva—The council of the League of Nations is much obliged to John D. Rockefeller. He has paid for publication of an English edition of a directory of international organizations.

New York—There are some newspapers here that Mr. Walter Williams, dean of the school of journalism at the University of Missouri, dislikes. He says "New York, judging by some of the newspapers it reads or looks at, has the greatest collection of morons in the country.

Cliff Haven, N. Y.—Jazz is regarded as "the tabloid newspaper of music" by Franklin Dunham, lecturer on music at Fordham. He gave his opinion at the Catholic summer school.

New York—"Tom Taggart" has been changed to "Sam Maddock" in Edna Ferber's book. Says the new edition, revised upon the politician's demand, "Next week we will run down to West Baden * * * in the evening we can take a whirl at Sam Maddock's layout. * * *. Last time we were down I won a thousand at roulette alone."

Philadelphia—Airplanes are going to be foolproof; also so cheap that anybody who can afford an automobile can now have one; also the air traffic will be so heavy that there will be airplane police. A few predictions made at a convention of automotive engineers.

New York—Mrs. Clemington Corson is going into the movies for her children's sake, she will demonstrate her swimming strokes and also play the piano at a film house some time after the children lead a parade up Broadway. Trudie Ederle, who has had a song named after her, is already cashing in at the Philadelphia exposition. Ernest Vierkoetter, German, who beat 'em both, was still an amateur at last accounts.

When World Was Younger

There are, of course, no actual statistics as to the population of the world at the time of Christ. Little of the world was known at that time to the nations which have since recorded and made history. An estimate placed the number at 300,000,000 in the known world. The present population (latest estimate) is 1,950,000,000.

LIVE STOCK

HORSE SHORTAGE NOW IMPENDING

The increasing shortage of horses on the farms of the United States makes the growing of colts especially attractive to some farmers. Some foresighted men are already growing more colts and are receiving good prices for them.

According to Prof. R. S. Curtis of the animal husbandry department at the North Carolina college, there has been a decrease in the number of horses on the farms of the United States of 16.8 per cent in the last five years. On January first of last year, there were 16,536,759 compared to 19,767,161 horses five years before. There is a decrease of 11 per cent in young horses foaled in 1923 and 1924.

Mules show an increase of 5.5 per cent during the last five years, but young mules foaled during 1923 and 1924 show a decrease of 44.5.

"Those who have good mares producing good horses and mules have increased the production of colts," says Professor Curtis. "Those who have been producing inferior animals have received such poor prices for the colts that they have been discouraged and have about quit the business. This is exactly as it should be and encourages the production of good horses. Competition with mechanical power requires not only the use of horses in more efficient ways, such as larger teams, but also the production of better horses and mules, capable of doing more work in a given time."

Professor Curtis states that those who have farms well equipped for the production of live stock, with plenty of pasture and hay crops, should investigate the possibilities of producing colts for market.

Rickets and Paralysis Caused by Poor Feeding

Fall pigs fed a basal ration of ground white corn, flour wheat middlings, old process oilmeal and salt at the Ohio experiment station, suffered severely from pneumonia, rickets and paralysis of the hind quarters.

Paralysis was found to follow sudden exertion or slipping. A post-mortem examination showed crushed vertebra in the back almost severing the spinal cord. Or in less severe cases, irregularities in the vertebra.

One lot received blood meal, others received ground limestone, ground peanut hulls to furnish fiber, cod-liver oil and yeast and various combinations. Blood meal as a carrier of an efficient protein soon proved a failure in preventing rickets, as did peanut hulls and vitamin B in yeast. Blood meal seemed to hasten the trouble. Cod-liver oil alone caused a powerful growth impulse and a weak though large bone results. The addition of a calcium salt, as in ground limestone, to the cod-liver oil, produced satisfactory results.

The less severe cases of paralysis were cured by the use of a corrective diet, containing particularly cod-liver oil and suitable minerals. Properly cured alfalfa hay has recently been found very valuable for fall pigs.

New Disease of Cattle Due to Spoiled Clover

A new disease in farm cattle, apparently due to the feeding of damaged or spoiled sweet clover hay and silage, has been under close observation for some time by A. F. Schalk, veterinarian, North Dakota Agricultural college. Doctor Schalk, after personal study, observations and reports received from farmers who have had similar cases of this disease, concludes that certain specimens of moldy, spoiled or damaged sweet clover hay and silage cause a definite hemorrhagic disease in cattle.

"There is no evidence of such disease from feeding on good, clean, well-preserved sweet clover hay and silage," says Schalk. He also has found that not all specimens of spoiled sweet clover hay and silage cause the disease. The kind and degree of mold or spoilage, as determined by ordinary inspection, do not determine whether a specimen is or is not dangerous for cattle, he believes.

For Fattening Steers

Both alfalfa hay and oil meal are valuable sources of protein for fattening steers. Alfalfa hay is not nearly so rich in protein as oil meal but it contains a vitamine which is not found in either oil meal or corn. With alfalfa at $15 a ton and oil meal at $60 a ton it almost certainly will pay to feed two or three pounds of alfalfa hay as well as one or possibly one and one-half pounds of oil meal per steer daily in connection with the corn and corn stover.

Live Stock Items

Soaked corn is not a satisfactory feed for young pigs.

Tests show that scrub hogs require 20 per cent more feed than pure breds to make 100 pounds of gain.

Too many hog growers consider only size, breed, type and show ring performance in the selection of the brood sow.

A hawk that hunts snails is a native of Florida. It is known as the "Everglade Kite," and is found over a large part of the state. It shows great skill in extracting the snail without breaking its shell.

Clears away itching rash in two days

Thos. Rashed gave for all kinds of skin ills

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 4:—"On July 20, 1917, just before I was called to service in France, I was advised by my druggist to use Resinol Ointment for a rash which I had on my arm. It relieved the itching and the rash was gone in two days. Later I cured two friends of mine who were suffering from some kind of skin trouble. We all agreed that it was 100% stuff for anything like a breaking out.

While in France I had a bunch of boils that nothing seemed to cure until I had the doctor fix the little place up (after a treatment with a knife) with Resinol. Needless to say, I soon lost all my boils and from that time on I became the outfit's boil and pimple doctor.

Since coming home I have used a great many jars of Resinol and I swear by it. Every little cut or scratch gets its immediate application of Resinol. It is a wonderful, non-equaled ointment." (Signed) Chas. T. Foust, Jr., 3015 So. 7th St.
